MEMORANDUM FOR : Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT : Analysis of Changes in The Real CIA
 by Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, Jr.

1. This memorandum is for information only to invite your attention to changes made by Mr. Kirkpatrick in his book The Real CIA in the light of suggestions offered to him by CIA after reviewing the original manuscript early in 1967. Attached herewith is a copy of The Real CIA with paper clips on each page containing material on which suggestions were offered (two paper clips are attached where both sides of a given page are involved). Marginal notes in each instance indicate whether the change was accepted or rejected.

2. Of the 57 items in the general category of "inaccuracies," Mr. Kirkpatrick corrected, changed or deleted 49 items. Fifty of these items were contained in my original memorandum to you of 14 February 1967 and almost all involved questions of dates, names or facts where Mr. Kirkpatrick had erred.

3. Thirty-six items which fell within the general category of "reactions" were also called to his attention. Of these, Mr. Kirkpatrick changed or deleted 15. These represented questions of judgment.

4. As originally noted, Chapter 7, "Batista's Cuba" (p. 156) presents material virtually all of which is published for the first time. With one exception (p. 180), this chapter remains unchanged substantively. Similarly, Chapter 8, "The Bay of Pigs" (p. 184), which has drawn some press comment, is also substantively unchanged except for softening one statement (p. 203) as suggested by the DDCI. Major changes appear in Chapter 12, "The Future of United States Intelligence" (p. 281). Fourteen pages of the original manuscript in which Kirkpatrick describes his hopes and ultimate rejection for appointment as DDCI or DCI have been eliminated. He has also deleted references to his farewell party, and at my suggestion, has deleted his references to my activities.
